

FDIC Deposit Insurance Notice

THIS LETTER IS INFORMATIONAL ONLY AND REQUIRES NO RESPONSE.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) requires that banks inform sweep account clients whether their funds are being swept into an account that is FDIC insured. If the funds are not swept into an FDIC insured account, the following information provides the status of those funds in the event of bank failure.

Funds deposited into your trust checkwriting account ("TCW") are not swept into your trust or custody account until the next business day. Depending on the investment type chosen, funds from your TCW account may be swept into an investment vehicle that is not FDIC insured. In the event of bank failure, the cash funds in trust accounts are separate from the bank's general assets and are not affected.
