FUND COMMENTARY

The Federal Reserve (Fed) signaled a pause in its rate cutting campaign after cutting rates at its July, September and October meetings. The Fed changed its bias from easing to neutral and reiterated that it would take a substantial change in the economic outlook to increase rates. U.S. and global economic data stabilized during the quarter and the United States and China made progress in trade negotiations. All of these positive developments contributed to the steepening of the yield curve. Credit markets benefited from a stable financial and economic environment and an easing of the trade rhetoric.

The Fund returned 0.76% in the fourth quarter, compared to 0.59% for the Bloomberg Barclays 1-3 Year U.S. Government/Credit Index, the Fund's benchmark. The Fund was overweight U.S. corporate credit which contributed to performance. The Fund's longer duration detracted from performance as rates were slightly higher. The Fund's allocation to high yield bonds also contributed to performance as risk assets performed well on the back of a firming economic outlook.

Please remember that all investments carry some level of risk, including the potential loss of principal invested. They do not typically grow at an even rate of return and may experience negative growth. As with any type of portfolio structuring, attempting to reduce risk and increase return could, at certain times, unintentionally reduce returns.
